Kursrapport FK7065 HT-22

Description of changes since the last course and decisions already made since last course date (if any was made)

This was the first time the course was given on campus after the pandemic. Therefore, some of the elements introduced to cope with the pandemic were adapted to fit in the class room setting, e.g. the tutorials.

The strengths of the course's according to the students (summary based on quantitative results, text responses from the survey and any other evaluation during the course)

The students are overall happy with the course and felt the teaching helped them achieve the intended learning outcomes. The tutorials were particularly highlighted as very good and useful to understand the material.

The weaknesses of the course according to the students (summary based on quantitative results, text responses from the survey and any other evaluation during the course)

In line with the positive remarks, more tutorials are requested. In addition, less lectures via Zoom is also requested.

The teachers' analysis of the course's implementation and results

The results of the course are overall representative of previous years. While campus teaching has resumed, this year in particular few lectures had to be moved online due to sickness and the stricter regulations on staying at home in case of symptoms. This will most likely improve next year.

Conclusions and suggestions for possible changes in order to develop the course and any decisions already made to develop the course before future course dates.

Given the positive response towards the tutorials, the possibility of including more similar elements will be explored.
